Parenting The Second Time Around

More than 35,000 grandparents and other relatives in Washington State are raising children often with little support or knowledge of resources.

To better help meet the parenting needs of kinship care families the dynamic train the trainer training and curriculum, developed by Cornell University Cooperative Extension will be presented during a special two day workshop.

This training may be for you if you are a:

- parenting educator,
- school personnel,
- kinship care support group leader.

Attendees are asked to present two workshops on one or more of the curriculum topics in their local communities over the next year.

Sponsored by:

Aging and Disability Services Administration/DSHS,
Washington State University Thurston County Extension
Thurston County Public Health & Social Services
Washington Council for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect-WCPCAN.
